EVERYDAY EDITION

70 AI shortcuts for everyday life

Type a short slash word, add a few details, get a consistently good answer. Nothing to install. Just better ways to ask.

START HERE

How slash commands work

They're not a secret feature. They're a clear way to ask.

When you type something like /recipe into ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini or another AI, it reads the word as your intent and gets to work. Nothing needs to be installed or switched on. The slash simply marks a short, memorable label for what you want.

The real trick is what comes after the word. Each command in this guide pairs the slash word with the details that make the answer reliably good: who it's for, the tone, a photo, a limit. That's what turns a vague answer into a useful one.

/trip 4 days in Chicago, two people in their 60s, easy walking
```

The slash word
Tells your AI the job.

The details
Where, how long, who.

The preference
The thing that makes it yours.

1

Type the word

Start a new chat and type the command, like /letter.

2

Add the details

Follow the “Add” line. Upload a photo when it asks.

3

Refine it

Reply “shorter,” “warmer,” or “again, simpler.”

GOOD TO KNOW

- These are shortcuts your AI understands, not official features. Results vary a bit by model.
- If your app shows a menu when you type /, keep typing or press Esc.
- Works in ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini, Grok, Copilot and others, on phone or computer.

STAY SAFE

- Check facts, prices and opening hours before you rely on them.
- Health and money answers help you prepare. Your doctor or adviser decides.
- Never paste passwords, card numbers or ID numbers.
